

Home Education & Shared Responsibility Students

December 2025

Background

The Division recognizes the choice of parents/guardians to exercise their right and responsibility to provide an education at home for their children in Grades 1 to 12.

The Division recognizes its role in the supervision and evaluation of home education programs in order to ensure that students will have the opportunity to meet standards of education acceptable to the Minister of Education.

The Division believes any arrangement between the Division and the parents/guardians should be based on mutual trust, and that schools should maintain friendly and supportive contact with home education parents/guardians and students.

Where the choice of home education or shared responsibility is exercised by the parents/guardians, the Division will supervise and offer assistance and advice to the parents/guardians to ensure the student's access to resources and to facilitate satisfactory student achievement.

Parents choose curriculum resources and methodology consistent with their family's beliefs and consistent with the Home Education Regulation 89/2019.

Definitions

A Home Education Program means an education program provided by the parents/guardians to a student in accordance with the Home Education Regulation 89/2019 but does not include any portion of an education program that is the responsibility of a Board.

The Home Education Handbook Understanding Choices and Responsibilities provides information for parents/guardians on:

- Planning the child's education program.
- Understanding legal rights and responsibilities.
- Following through with a home education plan.
- Planning supports and services.
- Ending a home education program.
- Planning for transitions.

Shared Responsibility Students are those students that receive between 20% and 80% of school programming from the school authority. Program delivery less than 20% is considered a home education program; program delivery of over 80% is considered a full-time student of the school authority.
